Medical Rural Bonded Scholarship (MRBS) Scheme

The MRBS Scheme is an Australian Government initiative designed to address doctor shortages outside metropolitan areas across Australia. The MRBS Scheme provides one hundred additional Commonwealth Supported Places (CSP) each year to first year Australian medical students at participating universities across the country. Students who join the MRBS Scheme are eligible to receive a scholarship payment of over $25,000 which is indexed annually during the course of study.

In return, following attainment of Fellowship of a specialist college, including General Practice, doctors will work for six continuous years (less any credit obtained through Scaling) in rural or remote areas of Australia. This is referred to as Return of Service Obligation (RSO).

The need for more doctors in rural Australia is widely recognised and many communities have identified having a local doctor as high on their list of health priorities. Addressing these issues requires a partnership approach between government, universities and particularly doctors who are willing to make a real commitment to providing medical services to communities in areas of most need.

Accordingly, students joining the MRBS Scheme will enter into a Contract with the Commonwealth in the expectation that they will make a firm undertaking to honour this agreement. The application and selection process for an MRBS Scheme place is determined by the university students choose following the submission of an application.
to study medicine. The opportunity to receive an MRBS Scheme place is available to all CSP students accepted into a medical school. Several universities require an expression of interest to receive an MRBS Scheme place to be lodged online. Students should seek further information on the application processes by contacting the medical school they plan to study at directly.
