From the Principal

This year's Primary Musical represented a new direction for the junior years. For the first time, the event involved Years 3 to 6 – bringing together all three junior campuses, and was an opportunity for every student in those years to participate.

The result was not only a wonderful evening's entertainment, but an exposure to the performing arts for each child – both experienced actors, singers and dancers and also those who were experiencing, and enjoying, the stage for the very first time.

The coming year sees a new addition to the College's Performing Arts calendar – the Secondary School Play – which will be an opportunity to showcase our dramatic and acting talent. The play will complement the annual musical as another opportunity for our most able performers to display and develop their skills. House plays, musical soirées and Scopus Idol complete the range of arts events.

Next year we will also be expanding our music instrumental tuition in the Primary School, in order to strengthen the next generation of Scopus musicians and to ensure that our artistic opportunities and performances continue to grow.

With our superb facility in the form of the Besen Family Performing Arts Centre, and our dedicated staff providing the inspiration and the teaching, we look forward to the continued development of music and drama at the College.

A Novel Idea

The 2008 Primary School musical set a new standard at Scopus. With over 350 students from Years 3 to 6 involved, co-ordination and logistics played as much a part in its success as the talents of our actors, dancers and singers.

Set in a book shop, the musical told of a group of children who had begun to lose interest in their jobs. Suddenly 'sucked' into several classic story books, the children find themselves surprisingly inspired to work harder to save their jobs.

Thanks to the Three Little Pigs, Cinderella, Jack and his beanstalk and the Tortoise and the Hare, the staff of Top Tales book shop start to work together and believe in themselves, just in time to save their jobs from a bunch of identical robots.

Directed by Old Collegian Mazz Sackson, with musical direction by Dani Aisen and the invaluable assistance of countless staff, A Novel Idea allowed our students to shine.

Faces of Israel

Israel came to Scopus recently, in the form of an innovative Israel activity for Year 8 students.

As part of the Israel Studies unit within Judaic Studies, Israeli society was represented by eight activity stations, symbolising different segments of contemporary Israel. Students chose different stations and had specific duties to perform according to the nature of the station.

Stations included the army, a kibbutz, an absorption centre, Hebrew University, a hi-tech company, a travel agency, Sherut Leumi (National Service) and a yeshiva. At each station students had to complete a task and were awarded points in terms of happiness, spirituality, money and national service. There were eight rounds to the game.

ROMY SACKS AND JENNA SPUNGIN 'MILK' A COW AT THE KIBBUTZ STATION

This activity was an excellent example of experiential learning, where students entered a different space – both physically and imaginatively. The students learnt through their own actions, decisions, dynamic involvement and engagement. As with all informal educational activities, the key is striking the right balance between the 'fun factor' and learning.

Staff members of the Informal Jewish Education Department together with our Sherut Leumi young women and youth movement madrichim (mostly Old Collegians) were involved in planning, setting up and running the program.

Mount Scopus Memorial College Mission Statement

Recently the College leadership re-formulated Scopus' mission statement. The new mission clearly identifies those principles and aims that uniquely identify the Scopus philosophy, and by which we judge our success.

The mission of Mount Scopus Memorial College is to provide each student with an education and an environment that

- promotes excellence in learning and academic achievement by means of inquiry and critical thinking and by creating a desire for lifelong learning
- develops the student's whole personality by offering a wide range of activities, inside and outside of the classroom
- provides Jewish learning, values, experiences, within a Modern Orthodox and Zionist framework, that enable each student to make an informed choice as to the meaning of their Jewish identity
- engenders values, knowledge and skills so that students can play their full part in their communities – as members of the College, as Jews, as Australians and as citizens of the world

THREE GENERATIONS OF SCOPUS GRADUATES, BEN AND ANTON GRODECK AND NEHAMA PATKIN

As Ben Grodeck walked out of his final Year 12 exam he walked into the College's history books, as the first 3rd generation student to graduate from Mount Scopus College.

Ben's father, Anton Grodeck, graduated in 1978 and his grandmother, Nehama Patkin OAM in 1955, having been one of the first students enrolled at the College.

His great-grandfather, Benzion Patkin, supported by wife Hemda, was a founder of Mount Scopus and as Ben readily admits, "Scopus is in my blood".

Ben recalls one of the highlights of his years at Scopus as the wonderful informal Jewish education he received.

"Every Chag there was an incredible atmosphere and it was always fun".

He also acknowledges the huge range of opportunities available at Scopus today and is grateful for the chance to play interschool hockey, take part in camps and leadership programs and be involved in the SRC.

"The school definitely brought out the best in me."

"Dinner time conversation at home now includes my dad telling us how good it was at Scopus in the 1970s, as he celebrated his 30 year reunion this year." Ben said.

Anton Grodeck, now a member of School Council agrees there is distinctive buzz about the school that he feels every time he visits.

"It's an atmosphere of students who are busy being involved; not just in their studies but in informal Jewish programs, the arts, sports and charitable work. It's never been just a school, it's a community."

"This seems to breed a confidence in the students and a very strong sense of their own identity as members of the Scopus community and as young Jewish Australians."

Anton added, "I grew up with the knowledge that it was through the vision of my grandfather, Benzion Patkin, that Scopus was established. I am confident he would be immensely satisfied with what has been achieved in 60 years and of course, exceptionally proud that his great grandson is the first of the third generation to graduate".

Nehama Patkin agrees, "I am totally overawed by the size of the buildings and the surrounding grounds. If only my father could see now what his vision has become. I do not believe for one moment he could have foreseen this incredible outcome!"

"I remember my very first day in February 1949, sitting in a classroom in a St Kilda Road building with only one other student in Grade 6. I was only nine years old and couldn't quite comprehend what all the fuss was about, but had a feeling that I was part of the birth of something historic."

Nehama recalls, "In my first years at the school all the young girls were taught the importance of keeping a Kosher home. Learning how to make liver kosher in a tiny kitchen on the St Kilda Road campus will remain indelibly imprinted in my mind forever!"

Today I see students from Kindergarten to Year 12 being given the best possible Jewish education and am immensely proud. In Ben I see the result of what Mount Scopus offers – a sound secular education with a very rounded Jewish knowledge.

Gan Gani places available for 2009

The College has limited places available in its popular Gan Gani program for 2 year old children and their parents. In weekly sessions, toddlers and their parents enjoy music and movement, storytelling and Kabbalat Shabbat while socialising with other children. Gan Gani is offered at both The Szalmuk Family Early Learning Centre (at Gandel Besen House) and Fink Karp Ivany campus. Children must have turned two and be eligible for kindergarten in 2010. They do not need to be registered for a Mount Scopus kindergarten in order to attend.

Scopus safe crackers

LENNY BLOOM, SHAANAN COHNEY, MR ALAN MADDEN, TOMER SIMOVICH AND MARK BLOOM

A team of Year 11 students will travel to Israel next year to compete in the worldwide Shalheveth Freier Physics Tournament at the Weizmann Institute of Science.

Lenny Bloom, Mark Bloom, Tomer Simovich and Shaanan Cohney will compete in the two day tournament in March 2009, accompanied by physics teacher Alan Madden. They are the first Australian team to take part in this prestigious competition.

Each year, the Weizmann Institute hosts the greatest safecracking challenge known to high school students, as they strive to build a safe that only they can open, and then try to crack the safes of all the other teams.

Each team must use simple materials to build a lock that operates on a combination of advanced physical principles, and is able to be opened in less than five minutes, but that will keep opponents stumped for at least twice that time.

Entries are scored for being pick-proof, as well as originality and elegant application of one or more physics principles. Teams score added points for every safe they manage to crack.

The Scopus team have already begun preparing for the competition and have now settled on their 'top secret' design.

With students from around the world participating, the tournament will be an excellent opportunity for our students to work with like minded physics students. In addition, the exposure to the first class postgraduate Physics Department at the Weizmann Institute will enhance their learning enormously.

Overall, the experience of 'thinking physics' under competitive pressure will be a hugely positive learning experience.

The College appreciates the assistance of supporters who are making this possible.

We wish them Behatzlacha and good luck.

Riding for a cause

ARIELLA GRUNFELD, MONIQUE LUSTIG, BRAYDEN LUSTIG, SASHA FINK, KARYN SPILBERG, ROMI FANAROF, HANNAH GOLDMAN, BIANCA SILVER, NATALIE COWAN AND REUBEN GRUNFELD

The students of our junior campuses have been arriving at school on bikes, scooters and rollerblades this term. All in the name of a good cause, the students have taken part in 'ride to school' days to raise money for Parkinson's disease.

After hearing past parent and Old Collegian, Karyn Spilberg, speak about the way the diagnoses of Parkinson's disease changed her life at 45 and hearing her courage and determination, the children decided they wanted to help.

Karyn's goal was to participate in the Parkinson's team challenge – a 13 day cycling adventure through Vietnam in March 2009. Needing to raise $6000 to take part, as well as remain physically and mentally focused and motivated, Karyn provided a real role model for the children.

In a very tangible way, the children wanted to help and so encouraged their families and friends to sponsor their ride to school days.

Encouraging students to take part in a fun physical activity, the ride to school days also allowed them to develop their own sense of determination and achievement, as well as experience empathy with others.

Karyn in turn has been inspired by the children and the positive way they have embraced her cause and made it their own.

Now much more aware of the effects of Parkinson's disease, the children will be able to track Karyn's progress next year in Vietnam.
